

The great effect of lahars on the many towns downstream from Mt. Pinatubo is illustrated in this photograph. Many buildings like the house at right, have been almost totally buried. Residents who have stayed in the area raise their homes on tall pillars to help mitigate against the risk of future lahars. (Photograph by P. Mougini-Mark, University of Hawaii.)

